Love on Skates.

See the maiden with her skates,
Dainty skates!
What a world of coquetry her manner indicates
For her lover gazes at her.
And he joins her on the floor,
And they clatter, clatter, clatter,
All unheedful of the clatter,
All unmindful of the roar;
Floating light as any feather,
Till they both sit down together,
With a haste involuntary,
And a grin that intimates
'Twas the skates, skates, skates,
Skates, skates, skates—
Love, alas! is too unwary
On his skates.

KATE'S VICTORY.

"Working girls, of course," said Kate Selwyn, "going home from the factory. Oh, poor things, how tired they look! Do you know, Mr. Varian, it always seems to me as if they belonged to a different order of beings from us."

"I don't know why you should draw such an inference as that," said Mr. Varian.

Kate laughed.

"Don't take my nonsense au serieux," said she. "Have you any relations among the factory girls?"

"Not that I am aware of," Mr. Varian quietly answered.

"Then I don't see why you should espouse their cause," laughed Miss Selwyn. "Look at that fat little dowdy with the checked gingham dress, and the broken-backed feather in her hat, and the tall woman with the scanty shawl and high-heeled boots. Was there ever anything so ridiculous?"

And then the whistle blew, and the train moved on, and the smile faded from Angus Varian's face as he watched the merry sparkle of his companion's eyes, the dimples coming and going on her rosy cheeks.

The very next station was Keyford, where they must alight. And he had not told Kate Selwyn yet—he could not tell her. Let circumstances develop themselves; he had not the heart rudely to plunge a dagger into that innocent young breast.

He had chanced to be coming from Albany, and had acquiesced in Dr. Selwyn's request that he should bring Kate home from boarding school—blooming eighteen-year-old Kate, who had just graduated with all the honors, and who having spent two vacations with favorite schoolmates, had not been at home for two years.

"And," Dr. Selwyn had hoarsely added, "if you find a fitting opportunity, Varian, you might mention to the child how things have changed at home. She'll have to know it sooner or later—and it may possibly save her a shock."

But either the "fitting opportunity" had not presented itself, or Mr. Varian had neglected to avail himself of it. And here they were "slowing up" at Keyford, Kate springing joyously from her heap of traveling-shawls, novels, flowers and bonbons, with the cry of "Papa! Oh, I see papa."

And the next minute she was in his arms, kissing him, while she thanked Mr. Varian for his kindness in escorting her home.

"You'll come and see me sometimes?" she said "if I have not wearied you out with my school-girl chatter."

Mr. Varian smiled, lifted his hat and went away, while Kate, leaning fondly on her father's arm, looked around inquiringly.

"Where is the carriage, papa?" she asked, "and the two darling old greys?"

"We'll walk, my dear," said Dr. Selwyn. "It is but a step. The—the fact is, we are not living where we did. We have moved."

"Moved, papa! Moved from Selwyn Grange?" cried Kate in amazement.

"And we don't find ourselves able to afford the expense of a carriage any longer," said Dr. Selwyn huskily. "Didn't Varian tell you?"

"Mr. Varian, papa? Tell me what?" said Kate with vague surprise.

"I see that he has not," said Dr. Selwyn. "Then I must tell you myself. We are very poor, Kate. We have lost all our property. I was foolish enough to speculate and have failed. So we have lost everything—the Grange, the carriage, the hot-house, the picture gallery, and all. We are living at Dean Cottage, and I think your mother will be very glad to have you back again to help her with the house-work. Why, Kate, my child, what is the matter?"

Kate choked down an immense sob.

"N—nothing, papa," said she. "Only it was so sudden. I have never dreamed of such a thing."

"I have been too abrupt," said Dr. Selwyn. "I am used to the idea myself, and I did not know how unpleasantly it might affect you. But you'll bear it bravely—eh, my darling, for our sakes."

"Yes, papa, I'll be brave," said Kate in a low voice.

Kate Selwyn was a stubborn aristocrat. All her life she had walked on roses, and smiled serenely on the workers of the world, as a gold-plumed canary in its glittering cage might view the brown-winged sparrow rolling in the dust.

And now—now! Alas, how sadly it was all changed!

But Kate was a heroine in her way, and she sat down to tea in the dingy back room of Dean Cottage as brightly as if it had been the stately dining-room of Selwyn Grange, even while no slightest details of the shabby housekeeping that surrounded her escaped her eye.

Oh, the mended carpets, the faded window draperies, the table cloth darned and patched, the poor glued chairs, and the window-pane cracked across, and mended with a piece of brown paper. Kate could have flung herself despairingly on the thread-bare sofa and cried her heart out—but she was too brave for that.

And after tea there were no wanderings among the flowers, no sitting at the piano (that had been sacrificed in the general wreck also,) no watching the red and opal effects of the sunset in dreamy far niente visions. There was no servant, and the dishes were to be washed, the room swept, all the household cares to be attended to.

They were in debt as well. Kate discovered that the next day, when the butcher presented himself, declaring that "his orders were to give no more trust until the old scores were settled up," and the baker's cart clattered by without taking any heed whatsoever of Mrs. Selwyn's beckoning finger.

"Mamma," said Kate, "we cannot live so."

"It is very hard, my dear," said Mrs. Selwyn with a quivering lip; "but I do not know what else is to be done. It was your father's ambition to keep you at school, and we have strained every nerve to pay Madame D'Orient's bills until you should graduate."

Kate thought of her Italian poets, her great piles on piles of music-books, her French authors, her water-color sketches, the crayons she had been so proud of, with a choking lump in her throat. Of what use were they all in this moment of dire necessity?

She could not force herself on anyone as a governess, she could not compel people to buy her pictures.

And the pale little mother wasting away by degrees, and the tottering paralytic father, whose feebleness was so painfully apparent to her now, although she had scarcely observed it at first.

"I must do something," she thought. "I have been a drag and a hindrance long enough. We must hire a little servant to help mamma. And papa must have something of this load of debt lifted from his poor, bowed shoulders. Oh, what can I do? Whither shall I turn? For with all my expensive education, it seems to me now as if I knew absolutely nothing.

And Kate Selwyn resolved that she would ask Mr. Varian, the kind family friend that came to see them so often, who sent the white grapes that tempted her mother's appetite when nothing else did, who brought the illustrated newspapers, and had so many bright ideas and suggestions from the outer world to cheer up Kate herself, when her spirits were at the lowest ebb.

More than this she had learned from her mother that he wanted to lend them money, but the old Selwyn pride had risen up in arms against that. But she did not ask his advice. She decided finally for herself.

"Mamma," she said, coming cheerfully home one day, "you must manage to do without me for a little while, now. I have engaged Linda Dartly to help you, and—"

"My child, what does this mean?" said Mrs. Selwyn.

"It means, mamma," said Kate with a low courtesy, "that I have taken a position in the factory."

"You, Kate!" gasped the dismayed mother. "A factory girl!"

"Why not, mamma?" appealed Kate. "I only wish that you could see some of the girls there. They are as perfect ladies as you would meet in any drawing room in the land. And the machines are worked by steam power, and the foreman is so kind and polite; and only think, mamma, I shall earn from ten to fifteen shillings a week, if I am a skillful hand."

Mrs. Selwyn burst into tears.

"Oh, Kate, my Kate," she faltered, "I never felt our loss so acutely as I do now."

"And I," said Kate brightly, "never felt so proud as I do now. Oh, mamma, I have spent my first month's earnings in anticipation already. You don't know what an heiress I feel."

* * * * *

"A new hand," said Mr. Varian, carelessly, as he glanced over the books of the steam factory. "But really, Mr. Hardie, I have nothing to do with the hands you may see fit to engage. It was quite unnecessary to consult me."

For Mr. Varian, a silent partner in this driving concern, had lounged in as usual, to glance over the books laid open for his quarterly examination.

"No, sir, I know that," said Hardie respectfully, "but this isn't an ordinary case, Mr. Varian. It's old Dr. Selwyn's daughter."

"Miss Selwyn?"

Mr. Varian was roused into animation at last.

"She came here, sir," explained the foreman, "and said that she had been learning to work the machine, and that she wanted to earn money to help her parents. Of course, I was a little doubtful as to her experience, at first, but I find she is a first-class operator, and—"

"What floor is she on?" Mr. Varian hurriedly asked.

"Number four, sir."

Mr. Varian waited until the big bell clanged for the dismissal of the hands, and then he joined Kate Selwyn as she came out. Kate colored, but she smiled as she saw him.

"I never knew, until to-day, Mr. Varian," she said, "that you were one of the proprietors of this factory."

"Neither was I," he answered, "until last month, when I fell heir to my uncle's share in it. But I have always had, more or less, charge of his affairs here."

"I suppose," said Kate, her long eyelashes drooping, "that you are recalling in your secret mind the silly speeches I made about factory girls, not so very long ago. But I am wiser now. There is no teacher like experience."

"On the contrary," he exclaimed eagerly, "I only await an opportunity to tell you how infinitely I respect your spirit and courage. Miss Selwyn, I have admired you for a long time, but now the feeling assumes an entirely different type. May I dare to say openly that—I love you?"

"Mr. Varian," said Kate, with flickering color on her cheeks, "you are rich. I am only a poor working girl."

"Kate, I shall be poor indeed, if you refuse me the great boon of your love. And in all respects, dearest, you are a fit bride for a king," said Mr. Varian with enthusiasm. "Answer me, Kate, I cannot live on in suspense."

The answer came soft, slow, and indistinct; but such as it was it entirely satisfied Mr. Varian. And Miss Selwyn did not long remain a factory girl.

But she had learned a lesson. The lesson that a working girl need not necessarily cease to be a lady, and that a lady might still be a working girl.

"That week in my husband's factory," she often said brightly, "taught me more than all my five years at Madame D'Orient's fashionable boarding school."

A HOG EXPLODED.

A correspondent says: "Talk about dynamite! I can tell you a true story of what nitro-glycerine once did in our State. It was near Prairie du Chien, where they were blasting on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road. The contractor had several kegs of the stuff in an underground place. One day a workman left the place open; by and by some hogs came along, found a keg open, and as glycerine is as sweet almost as honey, the animal filled himself. He came out by and by and soon wandered into a stable which contained about 40 horses belonging to the contractor. The hog got fooling around among the horses' hind legs, when one of them drew off and gave Mr. Hog a good one. The concussion started the business, and not a vestige was ever discovered of the hog or of a single horse of the stable. And where the stable once stood there was a hole in the earth 50 feet deep and 200 feet in circumference. Fact, gentlemen."

"Now, Minnie," said a mother to her four-year-old daughter, "I want you to play with your little brother while I am down town."

"An' what will you bring me?"

"Never mind. I will bring you something, and now, mind you, if he wants to play with your toys, you mustn't cry."

"Nome."

When the lady returned the little girl ran to her and said:

"I played with my little brother. Now what did you bring me?"

"Mamma brought you an orange. Where's little brother?"

"He's sleep. Gimme the orange."

She took the orange and said: "When he grabbed my dishes I didn't cry."

"You didn't? Why you are a good little girl."

"Yessum, an' when he grabbed my doll I didn't cry either."

"You didn't?"

"Nome."

"What did you say?"

"Nuffin, but I knocked him down wif the little chair."

JUDGE (to witness): "Repeat the prisoner's statement to you exactly in his own words." Now, what did he say?" Witness: "My Lord, he said he stole the pig." Judge: "Impossible! He couldn't have used the third person." Witness: "My Lord, there was no third person." Judge: "Nonsense! I suppose you mean that he said 'I stole the pig.'" Witness (shocked): "O, my Lord! He never mentioned your Lordship's name!" Dismissed ignominiously.

A GENTLEMAN just returned from India thus relates his experience: "The worst thing about the place," he says, "is the nuisance of numerous servants. Why, when I was at Hogglywallah I had four servants to look after my pipe alone?" "Four servants to attend to your pipe?" "Yes. The first one brought it to me, the second one filled it, the third lit it—" "And the fourth?" "Oh, the fourth smoked it! I never could abide tobacco in any form, you know!"

IF you say no, mean no. Unless you have a good reason for changing a given command, hold to it.

A WILL BURIED.

The sensational particulars of a will case have recently been made public at Buffalo. Robert A. Wallace, a prominent citizen, died in April, 1878. He left four grown up children by a former wife and a second wife and four babies. The second wife also had a daughter by a former husband. On his deathbed he told his elder children he had made a will providing for them. After his demise no will was found. The estate was settled, and a year later the wife died, leaving the remaining property to her children. A permit was recently obtained, and the elder children have opened their father's grave and found the missing will tucked away snugly between his vest and shirt.

The body was reburied without the precious document. It was, of course, in a very mouldy condition. The members of the family decline to make the contents of the will public at present, only stating that they are satisfied as to its contents, and that their father fully carried out in it his stated intention to provide for the children of his first wife as well as for his second wife and family. As the estate which amounted to about $30,000, has passed through several hands, it is believed that there is not sufficient remaining to warrant carrying the matter to the courts. The affair has caused considerable sensation in that city, where Mr. Wallace was well and widely known and highly esteemed.

SAM RANDALL, JR., is a political leader among the boys of Capitol Hill. He is ten or twelve years of age and wears spectacles, which make him look even more like his father than nature intended. During the late campaign his faith in Cleveland never wavered, although his school-fellows were nearly all for Blaine. Among his comrades he had one, Joe Duddington, who emulated him in the steadfastness of his Democracy and Sam determined to reward him with an office. As soon as Congress assembled Sam called upon Colonel Jim Wintersmith, doorkeeper of the House, and demanded a place as page for his friend Joe. The Colonel told him to bring Joe down some day and he would see what could be done.

Last week the two boys appeared at the Capitol and Sam told the Colonel that Joe was now ready to be sworn in, nor would he be pacified until the oath was administered. "Now you're a page, Joe. I told you I'd get you something good when Cleveland got in," said Sam, and the two boys went away in full faith that Joe was on the roll. He reported for duty promptly the next morning and the Colonel concluded that the best way out of it was to keep him. The parents of the two boys knew nothing of the scheme until it had been successfully carried out.—Washington Capitol.

THEY WERE DANDIES IN THEIR DAY.—Washington, who died in 1799, wore ruffles on his sleeves, and half of the men who signed the Declaration of Independence wore powdered wigs, Jefferson sported knee breeches, and Madison was proud of having worn a suit of clothes of American make at his inauguration. Daniel Webster usually wore a suit of snuff-brown color, with a large soft necktie. Martin Van Buren was very fastidious about his clothes, and always appeared during the summer in the whitest of white duck linen. His clothes were cut in the latest styles, and he wore very high stock neckties out of which peeped his standing collar, making his head look like that of John the Baptist on a charger. Andrew Jackson also dressed well, though he did not make his clothes a great matter. Henry Clay wore a swallowtail, and a standing collar extravagantly high. James Buchanan was always very precise in his clothes.

A COMMOTION was heard in a cell of the California State prison, and then one of the inmates cried out that his roommate was murdering him. The guards ran to the grating, and saw the assailant using a knife quite savagely on the body of the other fellow. Wariness on the part of the officers made the rescue slow, and by the time the cutting was stopped it had accomplished its purpose—which was to extract a bullet which had been in the victim's leg since the war. The wielder of the blade was a surgeon, who, failing to get consent for a needed operation, had determined to perform it by force.

STEEL SLEEPERS.—The desirability of substituting steel for wooden sleepers is again agitated in railway circles. Under the "basic" steel process, now owned by the Bessemer steel "ring," the railway companies in Europe are making steel sleepers of a good quality at a moderate cost from low-class ores. It is the opinion of the Iron Age that "the cost of laying and relaying wooden sleepers represents an item almost equal to the original outlay," irrespective of the inconvenience of breaking up the line so frequently to relay the wooden sleepers.

"FIFTY dollars bid, gentlemen," cried the auctioneer at an art sale; "only fifty dollars for this fine landscape, with its flowers, trees, water, atmosphere!—and such an atmosphere! Why the atmosphere alone is worth the money."

IN one of the Chicago courts recently the jury in a certain case were unable to agree upon the amount of damage to be awarded, eight being in favor of a verdict of one hundred dollars, while four thought fifty sufficient. They decided to settle the matter by tossing up a penny, the winning side to have the awarding of the verdict. The penny was tossed, and the side favoring the $100 verdict winning, that sum was awarded. The judge learning of the manner in which the verdict was arrived at, promptly set it aside.

To counteract the effect of a dose of poison accidentally administered to a man, near Beattyville, Ky., there being no emetic remedy on hand, a woman thought the nicotine found in a pipestem would answer the purpose. She broke an old stem, scraped out the inside, and gave it to the patient, who died in ten minutes.

MURDER WILL OUT.

The murderer of William Russell, the wealthy storekeeper, at Reisterstown, Baltimore Co., Md., (who was also a very prominent Odd Fellow and Free Mason,) who was shot and killed about two years ago by a burglar whom he detected in the act of robbing his store, has, it is believed, been detected in the person of Philip Blizzard, residing about 5 miles from the scene of the tragedy. The discovery was made Monday through information given the authorities by the aged mother of the suspected person. She called on a justice of the peace and asked that she be protected from the violence of her son, who had threatened to kill her if she revealed a crime he was connected with. A warrant was issued for Blizzard's arrest. In serving the warrant the officers found in the garret of the house about $2,000 worth of silks, satins, and other valuable goods. Some were identified as those stolen from stores in the neighborhood. As the marks on all the goods had been removed, it was difficult to trace the property. A large quantity is believed to have been stolen from Russell's store.

The prisoner refuses to explain how he came in possession of the goods. His mother says he would go away and remain over night, and on returning he would bring the goods with him. The large quantity of stolen property alarmed the old lady, and fearing trouble, she informed her son of her intention to reveal the secret. He thereupon threatened to kill her, and she caused his arrest. Blizzard is 45 years of age.

EXCURSION TICKETS TO THE INAUGURATION, VIA THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.—There is every indication now of a large travel to Washington, on the occasion of the inauguration of the President. Citizens from all parts of the country will take part in the interesting ceremonies and aid in making the event a memorable one. The inaugural procession will be grand and imposing, and the ball promises to be a brilliant affair. Ample provision has been made for the accommodation of all visitors.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company is fully prepared to transport the large number of passengers to be attracted to the Capital, from points along its system. Almost unlimited facilities of transportation, and a station on Penn avenue in the very heart of the city, render the company fully equal to the task of handling, in the most satisfactory manner, its thousands of patrons.

Excursion tickets will be sold on March 2d, 3d, and 4th, good to return until the 7th, from all stations on the Pennsylvania Railroad, Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad, Northern Central Railway, Philadelphia and Erie Railroad, West Jersey and Camden and Atlantic Railroads, at greatly reduced rates. From Baltimore and all points south thereof, on the Baltimore and Potomac and Alexandria and Fredericksburg Railroads, excursion tickets will be sold on the 3d and 4th, good to return until the 5th. For full and detailed information, apply to local agents of the Pennsylvania Railroad and its branches.

CLEVELAND AND LABOR. — A Columbus, Ohio, Democrat who met Mr. Cleveland not long ago, and talked with him about the Hocking Valley strike, among other things, reports Mr. Cleveland as having said:

"Labor and capital have no antagonistic interests. Except for outside and mischievous influences and interferences there would be mutual concession and compromise, which would reduce the evil effect of periodical depressions to comparative insignificance. When capital, represented by overflowing warehouses, finds no market for its productions, or only a market yielding loss instead of gain, labor should sympathize with the difficulty and accommodate itself to the adverse circumstances. Capital should reciprocate by sharing its prosperity. But the trouble seems to be that mischievous counselors in the confidence of labor prevent any concession on the part of the laborer, and wages, when the very life of capital demands it, are reduced only by sheer force, and war ensues. Under this pernicious counsel trades unions are often at swords' points with employers, when all friction would be avoided if reason and sound business judgment were allowed to prevail."

A NEW word—"literarian," a person devoted to literary pursuits—is proposed by the Literary World, which says: "Litterateur is foreign; literary men is awkward, besides being restricted in gender; literarian, following the analogy of 'parliamentarian,' is natural; it is also sensible, euphonious, and convenient."

THE END OF A BET.—Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 18.—Jerry Collins and his nephew, Sam Scott, living near Shelbyville, went to that place and both got drunk and started home. When nearing home Collins bet a dime that his wife was not at home and Scott took it up. Mrs. Collins was at home getting supper. The men quarreled over the bet and retired to the yard to fight. Both drew knives and were cutting one another, when Mrs. Collins rushed between them. Turning hastily she ran back into the house. Collins and Scott soon made up and shook hands. Just then a little child rushed out of the house and screamed, "My mamma's dead." Entering the men found Mrs. Collins weltering in her blood. There was one wound in the back of the head and another near the heart. She soon died. Her husband is almost crazy over the affair.

THE following order for a block of teeth has been received by a dentist of Triangle, N. Y.: "My mouth is 3 inches across, ½ inches through the jaw; some hummocky on the edge; shaped like a horseshoe, toe forward. If you want me to be more partick'lar I shel hav to cum thar. Yours truly, ——."

CARRIERS at funerals in Lancaster city are merely ornamental, never touching the coffin to bear it out of the house to the grave. Colored servants are brought into requisition to do all this, the white carriers merely serving as tokens of respect.

"EXPERIENCE may be a dear teacher," remarked a clergyman, as the contribution box was returned to him empty; "but the members of this particular flock who have experienced religion, have accomplished it at a very trifling cost. J. W. M. NEWLIN, of Philadelphia, Charles R. Buckalew, of Bloomsburg, ex-Chief Justice Agnew, of Beaver, George W. Biddle, of Philadelphia, and S. Hepburn, Jr., of Carlisle, will prepare a revision of the judiciary article of the constitution of the state.

THERE was a court martial held on a young officer who had gone on a spree and had a fight in a bar-room. The bar proprietor was brought before the court and put in the witness-box. The prisoner was placed in full view. "Witness, do you recognize the prisoner?" "Yes, your Honor, and most of the court."

A GENTLEMAN was telling a tale of deep distress to a Quaker, one day, and concluded by saying: "I could not but feel for him." "Verily, friend," replied the Quaker, "thou didst right in that thou didst feel for thy neighbor; but didst thou feel in the right place—didst thou feel in thy pocket?"

TROUBLED REPUBLICANS.

Republicans are deeply interested in the course President Cleveland will be likely to take in appointments to office. They are more occupied with this subject than Democrats. All of a sudden they have become converts to civil service reform, especially in its application to Federal offices. The Press, in commenting on the re-appointment of General Hartranft and Postmaster Huidekoper, says:

The re-appointed officers receive their commissions for four years. This takes them almost to the close of Mr. Cleveland's administration. To remove either during his term would be so direct a violation of the civil service principle to which he avows allegiance that the new President could not take such a step without stamping the insincerity of the profession. He might re-appoint, but he is pledged not to remove.

When did Mr. Cleveland make a pledge "not to remove" these officers? Why would their removal be "a direct violation of the civil service principles," when the law on that subject does not embrace them? What claim have they on a Democratic President? They are both partisans, and staked their political all on the Republican party. They lost, and now come up with a whine, and ask to be retained in the soft places they have filled for years. In the late Presidential campaign, one of them took the stump for Blaine, hoping to make his "calling and election sure," and both contributed liberally to prevent Cleveland's election, and allowed their employes to be assessed for party purposes. The Democratic party owes them nothing. The retention of such men in office would be in direct violation of the November verdict. That meant reform in all departments of the Government, which can only be brought about by placing public trusts in the hands of men in full sympathy with administrative reform. The Press sounded the key note of their appointment, when it said it "best advances sound party policy." Of course! A Democratic President, with Republican office holders to block all reforms, and the G. O. P. would be master of the situation.

Nowhere is there greater need of reform than in our customs service. The custom houses are little better than hospitals for decayed politicians and ward managers. They are stocked to their utmost capacity. Since the Republican party have had charge of them the employes have been doubled, and the salaries largely increased. At Philadelphia the number has been increased from 181 to 285; at New York from 716 to 1,482; at Boston from 100 to 404; at Baltimore from 110 to 235; and at Portland from 20 to 47. The increase of commerce at these ports has not been in keeping with these additions to the force employed in the custom houses. They are used to reward partisan service. Of course, the Republican party are opposed to any change; they would like the present system to continue right along. Any change that will disturb the present partisan service strikes the average Republican as a monstrous crime.—Doylestown Democrat.

ANDREW F. BRADLEY, a prominent colored man of Chicago, publishes an open letter to Mr. Cleveland, in which he urges the promotion of fraternal feeling between the colored people and the Democrats, and predicts a division of the colored vote if this is done. He recognizes the result of the late election as a national admission that reconstruction was a failure, and declares that the sudden elevation of colored men in the rank of citizens was unnatural. "Men," he says, "make freedmen, God makes free men." He says the colored people cannot afford to spurn the friendship of half the white people of the country, and that the friendship of the Democrats is just as desirable and sincere as that of Republicans.

BERTRAM BOLTER, of San Francisco, after having been confined in a private insane asylum for 10 years, suddenly recovered his reason and was able to explain how he lost it. In 1873 he lived next door to a boy who, in practicing his music lesson upon the piano, one night played "Come, Birdie, Come," 130 times in succession in order to learn the tune properly. Mr. Bolter was found on the floor of his bedroom next day, devouring a Eureka hair mattress, and a raving maniac. On recovering his reason he told the above facts to his keeper, who, forgetting that hearing the tune again might agitate his patient, said thoughtlessly: "Why that's rather a pretty tune, I always thought. Goes something like this, don't it?" and he whistled the first four bars plaintively. "How's that?" he said. "Is that like it?" But the query was in vain; his jaw dropped, and he fell dead.

LITTLE TOM—"You are going with us to our picnic, ain't you?" Young Squipps—"Yes, my dear child. Your sister honored me with an invitation, and I would not miss such an opportunity for the world. By the way, Tom, here's a new silver dollar for you. Now, I want you to tell me something I want to know. Mr. Grayfellow isn't going is he?" Tom—"Oh, yes." Squipps—"Hang him! I thought I would have your sister all to myself to-day." Tom—"But you shouldn't want to hang Mr. Grayfellow. He was the one who told sister to invite you." Squipps—"He? Why, what did he want me for?" Tom—"To carry the baskets."

A CURIOUS and patient individual has worked for an indefinite period on the following problem: When walking against a heavy rain and some wind, will I get more wet by going fast or going slow? If I move rapidly I certainly encounter more drops in a given space, but I arrive at my destination sooner. If I could make the journey, say a quarter of a mile, in one second, I would have to encounter all the rain between the two points. Would I encounter any more if I walked leisurely over the ground?

A COMPETENCE LEFT.—The New York World publishes an array of figures to prove that Mr. W. H. Vanderbilt has lost within the past four years $80,000,000 by unlucky investments and shrinkage in stocks. It must be comforting to Mr. Vanderbilt to know that the World still concedes him the possession of $120,000,000, which is quite sufficient to keep the wolf from his door.

JUST as a lover had dropped on his knees and began popping the question a pet poodle, who thought the proceedings rather strange, made a dash for him. With remarkable nerve for a woman, the girl reached over, grabbed the dog by the neck, at the same time calmly uttering: "Go on, George, dear, I'm listening to what you are saying."

HENRY WATTERSON has been in New Orleans. At one of the balls he was introduced to Miss Maud Howe, daughter of Mrs. Julia Howe. He was presented as "Mr. Henry Watterson." "Happy to meet you, Mr. Watterson," said Miss Howe; "where are you from?" Mr. Watterson will never forgive her.

"HE tried to kiss me, and I just told him to behave," said an irate young lady after a sleigh-ride last night. "Well, did he kiss you?" asked her friend. "No, the idiot, he behaved."

Tuesday Evening, March 3, 1885.

THE INAUGURATION of Grover Cleveland as President of the United States will take place at Washington to-morrow. The preparations are on the most extensive scale, and the attendance from all parts of the country will prove phenomenal in our history. The whole city is elaborately decorated, Pennsylvania Avenue outdoing itself—and the procession will embrace from twenty to twenty-five thousand people.

The inauguration ceremonies consist of the swearing-in of the President and Vice-President, a military and civic parade, and a grand ball at night. The President-elect meets the retiring President at the White House about eleven o'clock on the morning of inauguration day. Together they are escorted to the Capitol, where they first enter the Senate chamber and witness the swearing-in of the Vice-President by the President of the Senate. The Senate then adjourns, and, following the Vice-President, marches to the east front of the Capitol, escorting the President-elect and retiring President, to witness the inauguration of the President. The members of the House of Representatives are also present. The inauguration consists simply of administering the oath of office by the Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, and the delivery by the new President of his inaugural address. The procession will then be re-formed and the new President and Vice-President will be escorted back to the White House. Upon their arrival there the President and ex-President will take places on a reviewing stand built directly in front of the White House and review the procession as it passes along. From there the line of march will be up Pennsylvania avenue to Washington Circle, then into K street and along that street to Connecticut avenue and to Massachusetts avenue, passing Scott statue to the Thomas Circle at Fourteenth street, where the procession will disperse.

PRESIDENT-ELECT CLEVELAND will arrive at Washington this evening.

VICE-PRESIDENT HENDRICKS arrived in Washington on Friday and had a very cordial reception. He has taken quarters at Willard's.

IT is said that James G. Blaine is behind the Republican deviltry which is trying to force an extra session and cripple Cleveland's administration in the start. But if he succeeds in his plot it will recoil and prove the most unfortunate of his many mistakes. The people are not in a temper to tolerate such low arts.

TO-MORROW this great country will pass into the hands of a Democratic Administration, and be the better for it.

THE House of Lords censures Gladstone by a vote of 189 to 68, whilst the Commons sustains him by 302 to 288. The English defeats in Egypt are sore blows to national pride.

CONGRESS has passed a bill providing for the forfeiture by the Texas Pacific Railroad Company of fifteen million acres of public lands, because of violation of its contract with the government. Thus has one insolent monopoly been brought to its knees. What is to be done with the rest?

EIGHT hundred Tammany men will march in the inaugural procession.

THE Prince and Princess of Wales will visit Ireland in April. Opinions differ about it, but all agree that the Prince is showing pluck.

ONE of the latest guesses on the Cabinet is—Bayard, of Delaware, for Secretary of State; Garland, of Arkansas, Attorney-General; Manning, of New York, Secretary of the Treasury; Vilas, of Wisconsin, Postmaster-General; Lamar, of Mississippi, Secretary of the Interior; Judge Endicott, of Massachusetts, Secretary of War.

DENNIS KEARNEY, the Herr Most of the Sand Lots, has not been heard from since the result of the late election was announced. Like a great many others of his kind, he went down on the field with a "dull, sickening thud" and a Blaine flag in his hand.

YORK and Carlisle elect Democratic Burgesses, as usual. Bradford, which gave Blaine 300 majority, now goes Democratic by 231, and Meadville usually Republican by 250, elects Democratic officers.

THE proposition to submit to a vote of the people a liquor license amendment to the constitution has been defeated in the Ohio Legislature by the Republican minority refusing to vote.

FOR TWENTY-FOUR years all Federal offices have been held by Republicans. Commencing with to-morrow, the proscription of honest and efficient men from places of public trust under the general government, simply because they are Democrats, will be at end. Indeed, as the Greensburg Democrat remarks, the fact that the citizen is a Democrat will be a very strong point in his favor.

DANIEL MANNING does not look unlike Cleveland himself. He is of a very similar temperament, and something of the same physical build. His acquaintance with and knowledge of Mr. Cleveland began very soon before the nomination of the latter for governor; and while they have been close and warm friends ever since, few people have troubled or taken the time of the president-elect less since November than Daniel Manning.

THE Democrats are not so much opposed to the construction of an American navy as they were, now that a Democratic secretary of the navy will have the expending of the money, says the Philadelphia Press. That is so. They have the assurance now that the money will not be stolen.—Patriot.

ROSCOE CONKLING is to witness the inauguration of Cleveland. He wants to see with his own eyes that "that man Blaine" doesn't get in.—Boston Herald.

PETER A. AHL and Daniel V. Ahl, of Newville, on Tuesday, made a voluntary assignment in trust for their creditors to E. W. Biddle and A. A. Thomson. The assignments cover both their individual interests and the property owned by them under the firm name of P. A. Ahl & Bro. Their landed possessions are located in a number of counties in this State, as well as in other States, and are very extensive and valuable. The present unusual tightness of the money market, combined with the recent illness of Col. Daniel V. Ahl at his home in Newville, doubtless made an assignment expedient at the present time. The large real estate interests of the assignors should be amply sufficient to protect their creditors, and we understand it is their hope and belief that all their creditors will be paid in full, and a sufficient amount of property left to insure their competency in the future.

HARRISBURG, February 26.—"What is the Legislature doing this session?" asked a visitor in the House to-day of Representative Faunce.

"It's doing nothing," replied Faunce, "and it's going to quit doing even that next week."

FROM HARRISBURG.

Special Correspondence of the Compiler.

HARRISBURG, March 1, 1885.

"Over the hills and far away." The Legislature has again taken a furlough. The adjournment took place on Friday last and will be until next Monday evening. Mr. Lowry, of Indiana, one of the most honest and independent of the Republican members, sternly rebuked his Republican colleagues for the little time they give their constituents, and their many adjournments on the most frivolous pretexts, but they laughed and jeered him down. 'Till next Monday evening the State will have paid these fellows the munificent sum of $180,000, and during all this time but two bills have been passed, one of which received the Governor's veto. These Republican members had better "make hay while the sun shines," for the time is fast coming when "the places which knew them (politically) will know them no more forever."

I paid a visit to the entertainment of a number of the inmates of the Pennsylvania Institution for the Blind, which is located in Philadelphia. It was given at the Opera House in this city, and a highly enjoyable affair it proved. Better instrumentations I have seldom heard even by the most noted of orchestras, and the singing, recitations and declamations by the poor afflicted ones were very creditable indeed. This institution receives the fostering care of the State, and at each meeting of the Legislature these entertainments are given for the purpose of showing the members and others what progress has been made.

The troops are passing through to Washington for the inauguration on Wednesday. Pennsylvania did not vote for Mr. Cleveland, but she will make the finest military and civic display of any State in the Union at his inauguration. Governor Pattison and Staff will ride at the head of the National Guard. Among the many civic associations will be the Democratic Central Club of Harrisburg, the members of which will be uniformed in drab overcoats, high silk hats, and black pantaloons, and will be accompanied by the State Capital Band of thirty pieces.

I read with great interest the account of the editor of the COMPILER's trip to New Orleans, and learned more than I ever knew before about the condition of the soil, business, etc., of the South. It is just such practical, well written, common sense letters as this, without parade, flourish or flummery, which enlighten the people of the North as to the true state of affairs in that section of our country. ADAMS.

JUDGE BLACK'S PROPHECY.

When the conspirators had about finished their nefarious work—when the consummation of the Electoral Commission infamy was at hand and the judgment against the clearly expressed voice of the people was to be pronounced, that noble old Jeffersonian Democrat, Judge Jeremiah S. Black, standing proudly erect before the men who had solemnly sworn to render a true verdict in the issue joined, but who had prejudged the case and in violation of their oaths had determined that Fraud should triumph over Justice, thus addressed the Commission:

"At present you have us down and under your feet. Never had you a better right to rejoice. Well may you say: 'We have made a covenant with death, and with hell we are at agreement; when the overflowing scourge shall pass through, it shall not come unto us; for we have made lies our refuge, and under falsehood have we hid ourselves.' But nevertheless wait a little while. The waters of truth will rise gradually, and slowly but surely, and then look out for the overflowing scourge. The refuge of lies shall be swept away and the hiding place of falsehood shall be uncovered. This mighty and puissant nation will yet raise herself up like a strong man after sleep and shake her invincible locks in a fashion you little think of now. Wait, retribution will come in due time. Justice travels with a leaden heel but strikes with an iron hand. God's mill grinds slow but dreadful fine. Wait till the flood gate is lifted and a full head of water comes rushing on. Wait, and you will see fine grinding then."

Judge Black's prediction, uttered in words that will live in history to "the last syllable of recorded time," has been fulfilled. The "waters of truth" rose last November and swept away the "refuge of lies" that had hidden the iniquities of the party that has so long ruled and has so nearly ruined the country. The day of retribution is now here. Justice is about to strike with an "iron hand." The "flood-gate" will be raised next week and "a full head of water" will sweep away the corruption that pervades every department of the government at Washington. There will be "fine grinding" when the machinery of the Reform mill is put in motion. The majority of the people of "this mighty and puissant nation" have declared that every rascal "must go" and that honest men shall fill every position of trust and responsibility. Oh, that Judge Black could have lived to have seen his prophecy fulfilled.—Bloomfield Democrat.

THE OFFICES.

It is probably true, as some of the Republican organs are telling us, that there are Democrats at Washington and elsewhere who are not certain what sort of a President Mr. Cleveland will make and are even now preparing to throw cold water on his administration, if it shall turn out, as they think likely, that they cannot have their own sweet way under it.

We say that all this may be true. It is very likely to be the fact. It would be strange, indeed, if in an organization that has polled nearly five million of votes there were not a good many who look upon its victory as valuable only in so far as it shall bring them office or contracts,—and especially is this likely after a period of twenty-four years, during at least twenty of which the party in power was kept in power almost altogether by and for public plunder.

But if the Republican organs are on this account congratulating themselves that a serious defection in the party is near at hand, then they are reckoning without their host. For a quarter of a century the Democracy has lived and waxed fat without offices. And not only without offices, but with other discouragements that would have wrecked any organization less securely grounded in solid doctrines dear to the people and vital to the country.

It is a very small proportion of the Democrats who want offices so badly as to be willing to enter into any contention for them. It is a still smaller proportion who want them as badly as they want the honest, economical and constitutional government they expect a Democratic administration to give them, and that will render the same energy and labor applied in the private station as is exacted in public life when public duties are fully performed, as profitable and in every other respect preferable.

The difficulty the Republican organs find themselves laboring under, and which leads them to the making of such mistaken calculations, is that they have not yet come to understand the radical difference between a party that has lived so long solely on offices and party that has come to be a greater power in the nation wholly without offices.—Union Leader.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28, 1885.

H. J. STAHLE, Esq.—Dear Sir: The premonitory bustle of inauguration day increases steadily. To-day most of the public buildings are very tastefully decorated, especially handsome is the Pension Office, in Cleveland's honor. Pennsylvania Avenue is one continuous emblem of stars and stripes. The interior of the new Pension building is almost ready for the ball, the festooning being very elaborate. This occasion will far surpass any former ball, on account of the presence of so many distinguished persons.

The Silver question is fast becoming the all-absorbing topic on account of Cleveland's letter to certain members of Congress. It is considered as a document of sound argument, abounding with good doctrine, not only by Democrats, but by Republicans as well.

Mr. Randall said this afternoon there is danger of an extra session. The House is practically through with the Appropriation bills, but on the Senate side there seems to be a hitch. They are not making headway as fast as they ought. Everything rests with them. The Senate continues to add amendments to the Appropriation bills and thereby causes delay in concurrence. The Fortification bill passed the House this afternoon; it was the last. The Senate committees are holding all-night sessions, but their getting through with the work before the close of the session is looked upon as rather doubtful.

The Senate passed without amendments the House bill to reimburse the settlers on the Duck Valley Indian reservation, in Nevada, in full for their improvements on the reservation.

Most of the members think that Congress will hold all-night sessions until the end, and thereby do away with a great deal of business that otherwise would increase the chances of an extra session.

The news of Gen. Grant's severe and critical condition was a surprise to most people here.

White, the Republican member from Kentucky, was on the rampage again the other day, but had to subside without reaching martyrdom. He will now cease to bother the House, having been elected to stay at home.

Cleveland's cabinet will be announced on Tuesday.

THE INAUGURATION, BALL, &C.

Letter to the Gettysburg Compiler.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27, 1885.

Daily the preparations for the inauguration, next Wednesday, are taking more definite shape, and a grand display is now assured. The parade will be one of the largest, if not the very largest, of the sort ever seen here. There will be nearly twenty thousand men in line, equally divided between military and civic organizations, representing every part of the country and every shade of political and social life. One interesting feature will be the large turnout of colored troops, coming, too, from both the south and the north.

Those who are entrusted with the preparations for the ball are showing commendable energy with that important branch of the work. The great hall is safely enclosed, and is being put in readiness for the evening's festivities. There now can be no reason for doubt that the ball will be entirely successful. And those who don't care about the ball will learn with interest that twenty car loads of fireworks have got here, ready to be touched off at the proper time.

The fireworks display will be the finest ever seen here. One set piece will be as large as the front of the new Pension building. There will be a fiery representation of the Capitol, 65 by 150 feet. One piece will be a portrait of Jefferson, sixty feet high, and a view of Niagara 65 by 300 feet will be given.

The court martial in the Swaim case did a bungling piece of work, and the President in approving the sentence expresses his displeasure with the findings. Swaim gets twelve years suspension on half pay, which is virtually his forced retirement from the army, as he would retire by law in eleven years. The common sense comment on this sentence is that if Swaim deserved it, he deserved to be dismissed.

On the surface the indications point away from an extra session, but of Congress it can always be said that no one can tell what a day may bring forth. L.

THE New York World says:—The "cake-walk," a very popular amusement among colored people, will be introduced in white society at Washington on the 4th of March. The Republican office-holders will take the walk and the Democrats will take the cake.

FROM the Comet: Mr. Cornelius Bream is the possessor of a four-legged chicken alive and kicking.

A young girl was killed in one of the Carlisle skating rinks one day last week. It happened by falling on the floor and several persons falling on her. She died instantly.

Samuel Fiddler, near Dallastown, York county, on Wednesday last, fell on the ice, and, breaking one of the bones of the neck, died in ten minutes.

During the month of January 'Squires Green and Martin, of Carlisle, committed one hundred and seventy-five tramps to the county jail.

Cumberland county paid over $14,000 to feed prisoners in 1884, and Adams a trifle over $2,000. Cumberland county's alms house fed tramps 13,097 meals. Cumberland's expenses were $91,001 and Adams county's only $45,710.88.

From the Item: On Friday night last a valuable mare, belonging to John Wisler, of Round Hill, became loose in the stable and on Saturday morning Mr. Wisler found her in the barnyard with one hind leg broken above the knee joint, from which cause it was necessary to have the animal killed immediately.

THE Mount Joy Star relates the following: "David S. Horst, residing two miles north of Mount Joy, while eating a meal at Cooper's Hotel, Lancaster, about thirty years ago, swallowed what he then supposed to be a pin. Mr. Horst often since at intervals would feel a sharp pain in different parts of his body. Of late upon his back and right leg, sore spots would appear, first about the hip, then farther down, until several weeks ago, another sore appeared between the knee and ankle and in the act of dressing it, he discovered the long lost pin that he had swallowed while eating a piece of pie, thirty years ago. It is rather a long journey for a pin to travel through the mortal part of a man for thirty years."

FIRE.—On Tuesday night a new barn near Churchtown, Cumberland county, belonging to Adam Noll, and occupied by John Day, was burned to the ground, together with two mules and all the contents, including hay, straw, grain, farming implements and gears. The fire was of incendiary origin. About two weeks ago some strange parties fired two shots through the stable door, the bullets lodging in the opposite side of the wall. They were fired in direct range of the stalls, so that if the mules had been standing up they must have been hit.

SOME fool down at Harrisburg has introduced a bill which provides for increasing the salaries of legislators. That chap will hardly offer himself as a candidate for re-election.—Bedford Gazette.

THE Apportionment bills being hatched at Harrisburg promise to be measures of clean-cut Republican rascality. The 450,000 Democrats of this State have no rights, it seems, which Cameron's gang of heelers have any notion of respecting.—West Chester Dem.

IT is a late day to take out letters of administration on the estate of Andrew Jackson, yet that was done recently at Washington by his grandson, Colonel Andrew Jackson, with the object of obtaining possession of a large number of valuable papers relating to the public and private life of the General.

SOME time ago George Storms, of Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., gave his wife a mortgage for $8,000 to insure her against abuse on her rejoining him after a separation. It has been pronounced valid, and as the wife now complains of ill-treatment, a foreclosure is to be brought.

IMPRISONED IN A WELL.—Mr. Lewis Bunty, a young married man residing on West Princess street, who works for Hantz & Kidd, made a narrow escape from death Monday morning. In company with Mr. Kidd, he went to Small's farm, south of York, to fix a pump. When Mr. Bunty was about twenty feet down the well, the wall suddenly bulged out about ten feet from the top, and meeting in the middle against the pump stock formed an arch over Mr. Bunty, while the balance of the wall to the top fell on the arch. Finding no help at hand Mr. Kidd jumped into his sleigh, drove to town, and accompanied by Mr. Hantz and others, returned and commenced to remove the stones. The work progressed slowly as the least mistake might prove disastrous. When they reached Mr. Bunty he was wedged in between the pump stock and the wall with a large stone on his chest, and was in water up to his waist. He was taken out and was found to have a number of bruises, besides being considerably used up by being in the water. Dry clothes were procured and he was taken home, and it is thought he will be all right in a few days.—York Daily.

THE use of Iodoform or Mercurials in the treatment of catarrh—whether in the form of suppositories or ointments—should be avoided, as they are both injurious and dangerous. Iodoform is easily detected by its offensive odor. The only reliable catarrh remedy on the market to-day is Ely's Cream Balm, being free from all poisonous drugs. It has cured thousands of chronic and acute cases, where all other remedies have failed. A particle is applied into each nostril; no pain; agreeable to use. Price 50 cents; of druggists. f17.4t

DESTROY THAT SIGN.—One may feel that he's getting old, but he naturally dislikes that anything about his appearance should advise others of the fact. Yet nothing does this so effectually as thin and falling hair. No woman wants to marry a man, and business firms hesitate to employ a man, who shows this fatal sign. Parker's Hair Balsam is worth to you, in this regard, more than its weight in diamonds. Use it, and have plentiful and glossy hair. Many have had every trace of grayness removed and bald spots covered by using a single bottle.

I used, instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well." ECZEMA

And Every Species of Itching and Burning Diseases Positively Cured.

ECZEMA, or Salt Rheum, with its agonizing itching and burning, instantly relieved by a warm bath with Cuticura Soap, and a single application of Cuticura, the great Skin Cure. This repeated daily, with two or three doses of Cuticura Resolvent, the New Blood Purifier, to keep the blood cool, the perspiration pure and unirritating, the bowels open, the liver and kidneys active, will speedily cure Eczema, Tetter, Ringworm, Psoriasis, Lichen Pruritus, Scald Head, Dandruff, and every species of Itching, Scaly, and Pimply Humors of the Scalp and Skin, when the best physicians and all known remedies fail.

Will McDonald, 2542 Dearborn St., Chicago, gratefully acknowledges a cure of Eczema or Salt Rheum on head, neck, face, arms, and legs for seventeen years; not able to walk except on hands and knees for one year; not able to help himself for eight years; tried hundreds of remedies; doctors pronounced his case hopeless; permanently cured by Cuticura Resolvent, (blood purifier) internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap (the great skin cures) externally.

Chas. Houghton, Esq., lawyer, 28 State St., Boston, reports a case of Eczema under his observation for ten years, which covered the patient's body and limbs, and to which all known methods of treatment had been applied without benefit, which was completely cured solely by the Cuticura Remedies, leaving a clean and healthy skin.

F. H. Drake, Esq., Detroit, Mich., suffered untold tortures from Eczema, which appeared on his hands, head and face, and nearly destroyed his eyes. After the most careful doctoring and a consultation of physicians failed to relieve him, he used the Cuticura Remedies, and was cured, and has remained so to date.

Mr. John Thiel, Wilkesbarre, Pa., writes: "I have suffered from Salt Rheum for over eight years, at times so bad that I could not attend to my business for weeks at a time. Three boxes of Cuticura and four bottles Resolvent have entirely cured me of this dreadful disease."

THE ROADS.—"Early Spring Work on the Roads," was the subject considered by the Farmers' Social at ex-Sheriff Hersh's, Meadow Valley Farm, on Wednesday. The most economical work is that which is earliest done. Supervisors now go into office on the first Monday of March, and they should consider it their immediate duty to inspect the roads under their charge. Standing water is the standing enemy of all roads, and a mere puddle soon leads to a vexatious mud-hole. The remedy is, early attention to the puddle. If taken at once it can be drained with a few dashes of the shovel; if neglected it may involve labor and outlay. To see to the drainage of roads early in the spring, is to save twenty times the cost two months later.

In this region it is the rule to put off road-making until after corn-planting. The time suits the farmers best, and that is one strong reason for adopting it. But this should not interfere with the early (March) attention urged by the Social. Money will be saved by it, and the work to follow in May will be easier done and more effective.

Property holders should give this matter their personal attention. If the Supervisor is negligent, let the owner of the land along which the wet road runs put his own hand to the shovel and remedy the official's remissness. Public sentiment—a good deal of it—would help the subject vastly. Let all concerned talk about it—and who is not?

Mr. Wm. H. Gelbach presided for the day, with Mr. John L. Sherfy as Secretary pro tem. The sumptuous dinner, embracing all the good things of the season, was enjoyed by a large company, and the meeting proved one of decided interest, if not of value.

LECTURE.—Notwithstanding the inclement weather, a crowded house attentively listened to Rev. J. K. Demarest's ably prepared and impressively delivered lecture on "The Alcohol-habit and its Cure," in the Presbyterian church on Tuesday evening. After criticising some of the extravagances of some temperance workers, the speaker showed the habit to be a disease, the chief symptom of which is a craving for alcohol. He then adduced a mass of medical testimony proving the deleterious effects of alcohol upon the human organism. He next discussed its curability and what may be the influence of inheritance, reaching the conclusion, upon numerous medical testimony of the highest order, "that there is hope for any one in whom there is life and reason." As to the means of cure, he recommended, first, consulting a discreet and suitable physician, at the same time the patient forming a firm resolve to totally abstain from the cause of the trouble. As helps to maintain such a determination, the lecturer dwelt on the importance of company, finding in that the principal if not all the value of temperance pledges and temperance societies. Next he spoke on the importance of amusements and of work, affirming that drunkenness is a vice at but few removes from idleness. In conclusion he dwelt on the necessity of that help which comes only from the grace of God.

SOLDIERS' MONUMENT.—The project to erect in Gettysburg a monument to the Adams county soldiers who fell in the late war is taking shape. Corporal Skelly Post has appointed the following committees to act as a central committee:

Post Committee.—Major Robert Bell, N. G. Wilson, W. T. Ziegler, J. A. Kitzmiller, C. Hamilton, Major H. S. Benner and R. E. Culp.

Citizens' Committee.—D. A. Buehler, Esq., Hon. Wm. McClean, D. Wills, Esq., H. J. Stahle, Col. Jno. H. McClellan and Hon. Jno. A. Swope.

The committees will meet on Thursday evening for organization.

HANDSOME MARBLE.—Carroll's Tract, this county, can produce as handsome variegated marble as Virginia or Tennessee. This was proven, the other day, by Mr. Wm. N. Miller, marble worker, who exhibited to us two stand tops of polished marble, containing every variety of shade and beautiful in combination, the material taken from Mr. Daniel Musselman's quarry and worked and polished by Mr. Miller. The tops were nearly two feet square. Mr. Miller should push the introduction of this very handsome marble.

THE Pennsylvania Conference of the United Brethren in Christ met in 104th session at Lebanon, Wednesday, Bishop J. Dickson, D. D., of Chambersburg, presiding. Bishop J. J. Glossbrenner is also present and takes part in the deliberations. Revs. J. R. Hutchinson and G. W. M. Rigor were elected secretaries. The conference embraces a large district of territory, is composed of sixty-six fields of labor, and reported last year 13,216 members.

Thursday morning Rev. E. Light, Presiding Elder of the Baltimore district, read his report, which showed 700 accessions to the church in his district.

ON last Friday the teacher and pupils of Pines school, Straban township, were surprised by a visit from Woodside (the teacher's former field of labor) and Rocky Grove schools. The house was crowded, but the school retained their self-possession and entertained their guests with reading, recitations and debate. All went home well pleased with the visit.

JUDGE SADLER, of Carlisle, has resigned as President of the Farmers' Bank of that place. Wm. Barnitz was elected to fill the position.

ARENDTSVILLE ITEMS.—A thaw has set in, and if it should be sudden it is feared damage may be done along the streams. The timbers for the bridge across Conowago above town have been taken back from the stream to a place of safety.

The Reformed congregation here have resolved by a vote of the congregation to remodel their church the coming summer. There is room for the display of real good taste, and it is hoped such will be the case.

The Literary Society of this place is well attended, crowds being present every night. The question for debate on next Friday evening is, "Resolved, That the pen is mightier than the sword." G.

FAIRFIELD, March 2.—We have had two weeks of uninterrupted fine sleighing which was enjoyed by almost every one, but the warm sun of the last few days warns us that it is nearly over for this winter. The sunny south, with its balmy breezes, eternal sunshine and air made fragrant with the odor of orange blossoms, may be the place for invalids, but who that is in robust health does not enjoy the winter season in this variable temperate climate of ours, and will even risk the chance of a blizzard once in a while for the pleasure of a sleigh ride with a good horse, a comfortable sleigh and a genial companion?

Last Thursday, as Mr. Lawrence Singley was engaged hewing railroad ties for Mr. E. Cluck, the axe with which he was chopping glanced on the log and struck him on the right foot, cutting a terrible gash diagonally across the top of the foot and penetrating to the bone. Mr. Singley being alone, started at once for the house of his son, which was not far off, and on his arrival there fainted from exhaustion and loss of blood. He is doing as well as could be expected, but will be disabled for some time.

The council of the Reformed congregation, after consulting several experts in building, in regard to the condition of the spire on their church, have contracted with Mr. S. Florence to put in some braces and otherwise strengthen the structure. S.

LITTLESTOWN ITEMS.—Dr. John S. Kinzer sold his drug store, on Hanover street, to Dr. Kemp, who purchased the house of A. F. Barker and will continue the business at the old stand.

The firm of Colehouse & Kump will dissolve partnership by the first of April, the former retiring to private life and the latter to continue the business.

A good many of our cattle feeders are shipping their cattle. The prices now and present outlook are not very encouraging.

A son of Eli Bollinger, near Shildt's school-house, in Union township, gave chase to a fox last Wednesday and captured him at the breast of the mill-dam.

James Plunkert, of Mountjoy township, lost a horse by lockjaw some time ago. He was pricked by shoeing, which finally developed into lockjaw.

A three-yearling colt died for Emmanuel Fink, residing on the Metzger farm, near White Hall, of spinal disease. Mr. Fink has been quite unfortunate with stock, in two years he lost three colts, a cow and a heifer.

The union Temperance meeting will be held in the Redeemer's Reformed church next Thursday evening, to be addressed by Revs. W. O. Grimm and E. J. Metzler. EAGLE-EYE.

NEW OXFORD RECORDINGS.—Some half a dozen of our citizens are preparing to attend the inauguration of President Cleveland.

Mr. H. H. Geist, at Baughmansville, near East Berlin, had a fire that destroyed his store and house on Friday of ast week. His loss is said to be about $2,500, with an insurance of about $2,000.

Diphtheria prevails in a portion of this county near Hampton, and the mumps all over the country—the latter still bad in this place.

Mr. Charles Ritz, an old friend of ours, who left Hanover about 55 years ago, died recently in Lewistown, aged 81 years. We remember well the time he was in Gobrecht's drug store in Hanover. He was in the same business in Lewistown.

Prof. Wolf's entertainment in Miller's new Hall, on Monday night, was a success beyond all doubts. The house was crowded, at least 275 persons present. The scholars of the High School acquitted themselves admirably well. The Professor deserves great credit for making the entertainment a success.

Pius Brieghner, a clerk in Swartz's store, had a molar tooth extracted by a dentist at Hanover and nearly bled to death. The hemorrage was checked by Dr. Sandrock, of this place, after losing several quarts of blood.

Prof. Jacobs, the leader of the New Oxford Citizens' Band, who left here last Fall and removed to Roanoke, W. Va., was so unfortunate as to lose three fingers and the thumb of his right hand by some machinery that caught his hand in the gearing.

Sleighing parties from Hanover, Littlestown, Flat Bush, Bonneauville, McSherrystown and a few other places, visited New Oxford during last week. Most of them were from school.

Big Work.—Jos. R. Diehl, at his mill, near this place, chopped nearly 25,000 bushels of grain during the year 1884. In January last he chopped 3,511 bushels.

Connecticut makes 10,710,000,000 pins a year.

We see it stated that hundreds of birds were frozen in different sections of the country. Some farmers, we are pleased to state, are feeding partridges. The cold wave has been too much for them.

Mississippi is the only State in the Union without a National Bank. O.

PROF. D. EBERLEY, who has retired from teaching at Annville, and now resides with his father-in-law, Wm. Bittinger, Esq., at Abbottstown, has volunteered to teach the Classics in the school to be opened by Mr. J. W. Thoman in that place April 6th.

ON Tuesday week as Rev. Father Lavazari, Chaplain at the House of St. Joseph, near Emmitsburg, was about to make his regular visit there, he was suddenly thrown from the sleigh and broke his shoulder near the joint.

THE Wrightsville Star has very sensibly discontinued the use of the "patent outsides," and is again an all-at-home-printed paper.—Herald.

THE proposition to increase the indebtedness of Waynesboro $20,000 was voted down at the election.

A SUBSCRIBER at Nachusa, Ill., remitting $2 for his "old friend, the COMPILER, for 1885," says the weather has been very cold there; about 35 mornings the thermometer registered below zero, sometimes as much as 30 and 35 degrees; with lots of snow and roads drifted shut in some places. Everybody sleighing of course.

THE BIGGEST ACCIDENT ON RECORD.—Postoffice department officials say the disaster on the Midland road between Washington and Alexandria, caused the heaviest loss of United States mail that ever resulted from a railroad accident. One hundred ordinary mail pouches and 13 pouches containing through registered letters from the south for large cities in the east, besides considerable miscellaneous matter, were with all their contents burned up, and with them probably $200,000 in money.

A COLORED Republican has been elected a school director in Wrightsville.

BY the upsetting of a sleigh near Allentown, sixteen persons were dragged a hundred yards, killing the driver and a boy of 11 years, and fatally injuring five others.

FROM THE EAST END.—The "oldest inhabitant," than whom there is no better authority, declares that for severe and steady cold weather this year's February exceeds any he remembers for the last ten or more years.

The cold weather brings with it many discomforts and vexations. Not the least of these is the freezing of pumps. The other morning my neighbor found his pump in a frozen condition. In his efforts to open it he first poured in a lot of hot water; then a few handsful of salt; then he thrust in a heated crow-bar. But the ice would not yield. Vexed at his long and fruitless efforts he took his stand in front of the pump and spoke some bad words at it. Even that had no effect. About that time I deemed it advisable to retire from the scene. For some days now my neighbor fetches his water from my pump.

Hanover Items.—The stockholders of the Agricultural Society are considering the expediency of issuing bonds, secured by mortgage, for the purpose of raising funds to erect the necessary buildings on the fair grounds.—In the olden time Hanover was noted for its many horse races. During several generations, however, this sport was discountenanced, and fell into disuse. There are now symptoms of a revival of the old custom. Of late there have been several races near town, and others are under consideration. There must be a fondness for a sport that is indulged in during mid-winter, while the roads are covered with snow, and a cold wave is rolling in from the icy north west!—Mr. Davis Garber, proprietor of the Central Hotel livery stables, was badly kicked on the head by a vicious mule.—On Wednesday evening a sleighing party, numbering thirty persons, left here for York, spent several hours there very pleasantly, and returned about daylight on Thursday.

Michael Reily, Esq., of McSherrystown, for many years Justice of the Peace of Conowago township, died after a lingering illness, on Feb. 26th. The deceased was a prominent and useful citizen, and obtained universal respect. He was buried in the Cemetery connected with Conowago Chapel.

IN MEMORY OF OUR DEAR FATHER.
The Church has lost one of its best members,
His place will be hard to fill. His pastor, too, will miss him; yet we know that our loss is his eternal gain.
His busy hands are folded now,
Above his pulseless heart,
No lines of suffering on that brow,
No words the cold lips part.
At morn and noon and eve,
There is a vacant chair,
Awaiting void in all our hearts,
To whom he was so dear.
Farewell, dear father, oh, farewell,
'Tis hard to give thee up,
But what a comfort God has given,
We all can meet in heaven again.
MAGGIE.

Communicated.—Feb. 25th, at Bonneauville, suddenly, of apoplexy, Mrs. ANN L., wife of Jacob Althoff, aged 51 years. Mother of 11 children living and has 35 grand children.

All is lonely in our dwelling,
Sad and are our hearts to-day,
For the one we loved so dearly,
Has from earth passed away.
Sickness and great pain she bore,
Till death called her away,
And left us in our lonely home,
To sadly weep and pray.
In Heaven angels waited for her,
She is with them in the sky;
Though sad to lose her, we know,
She is happy, with God on high.
How we miss thee, darling mother,
No earthly tongue can tell;
But we know that God has willed it,
And what He does is well. A. L. F.

The Farmer's Fireside.

BY NILA.

What scene is there more joyous to the sight,
Than a Farmer's fireside on a winter's night!
The ruddy coals are glowing on the hearth,
The fire crackles with a sound of mirth.
Deepening night shuts out the light of day;
Upon the walls the flitting shadows play;
And in one corner, stately, worn, and tall,
The high-backed settle leans against the wall.
Above the mantle, neatly loop'd on high,
The nice pared apples hang festoon'd to dry;
Nor is that all, but ranged in bold relief
Flitches of bacon hang, and bits of beef.
Good Farmer true, his out-door duties o'er,
The cares of day distract his mind no more;
Draws off his boots, and in his elbow chair,
Of wholesome comfort takes a peaceful share.
The candle lighted, the newspaper found,
His good wife and children sit circling round;
He reads the news and some new discovered wonder,
Of Payne's new gas light, or of bottled thunder;
The price of wheat—charge for freights that's carried,
Who has died or failed, and who are married.

THE WHEAT QUESTION.

The wheat market has stopped in the career of improvement inaugurated a few weeks ago, and is apparently at a stand-still. The feeling everywhere is firm, however, and it is generally felt that the advance made will be of a permanent nature. This is good as far it goes, and there is good ground for expecting a continued movement in the same encouraging direction before there is one of the opposite nature. The plethoric condition which has for some months characterized the wheat markets, and which is yet holding phenomenal quantities of grain in sight, must within another year change to one in which supply and demand will be more evenly balanced, or possibly to one of comparative scarcity—though the latter hardly seems probable. It is reasonably certain that the harvest of 1885 will show a much lighter yield than that of 1884. A much less area was sown in many places, and the aggregate acreage must show a considerable shortage by comparison. The conditions of the winter season too have been somewhat against the crop. The succession of hard freezes, with the ground bare of snow, will no doubt show in the returns of the next harvest. Indeed everything apparently tends toward a curtailment of production of this important cereal. Advices from other wheat-growing countries are of different kinds, but it is conceded that the aggregate yield from these sources will be diminished. The meaning of it all is simply this: There is no reason under the sun for abandoning the growing of wheat, as those who have the pluck to stick to it for two years longer will discover.—Stockman.

MISTAKES IN TREE PLANTING.

Inexperienced orchardists, who purchase their trees at nurseries and pay good prices for them, in their desire to get their money's worth, prefer large, handsome specimens. These are set out with the full spread of their ample heads, without further care. The owner has not particularly observed how much of the roots have been taken off in digging them; or remembered or known the fact that nurserymen cannot secure more than a small portion of the roots belonging to "good sized trees." A long time is required for them to recover from the check thus given them. With smaller trees a much larger proportion of the roots may be easily taken, and very little check occasioned in their subsequent growth. Buying these large trees instead of small and thrifty ones is the first mistake.

The next error is in leaving the large trees with their short roots to hold them firmly without support, and the wind sways them about, forming a hole in the soil about the stems, admitting drying air, and injuring or killing them. Proper staking would prevent this harm; but selecting small trees with their ample roots would entirely obviate staking. The second error is the omission of this care.

But a greater mistake is in planting the large trees with their full branching heads entire. The wind has ample purchase on them, they have more leaves than the roots can properly feed, and they are accordingly stunted in growth. This harm would be avoided by cutting back three-fourths or more of all the previous year's growth before the buds swell. Trees set out side by side for experiment, a part of them unpruned, and another portion shortened back, have shown a striking result; the latter sending out new growth half a foot or a foot in length the first year, and the former only an inch or two. The omission of cutting back is the third error.

The greatest mistake of all is in giving the young trees no cultivation; allowing the soil to become hard and crusted, or covered with weeds and grass. Some kinds of trees feel this neglect more than others—peaches the most, cherry trees the least; but with all this neglect is highly detrimental. Many young and newly set trees die in consequence, and those which survive may grow two or three inches, while a wide surface of well mellowed and clear ground will often cause the trees to make two or three feet of growth, if in connection with other good treatment.

We could cite numerous instances proving the truth of the preceding positions. The late Dr. Kennicott once informed us that in purchasing trees for customers, he always succeeded best with those of second or third quality in appearance and size, and at low prices, because he could easily induce purchasers to head them back freely, but they could not be persuaded to spoil the large, handsome heads of the high-priced trees by pruning. The smaller ones had of course the better roots, as they were more easily taken up. We have seen a young and newly set peach orchard, one portion of which was neglected and the other well cultivated in potatoes, none of the latter of which grew less than a foot and a-half, and some nearly twice as much the first summer, while none of the former made shoots three inches long. A writer in the Practical Farmer mentions several instances where quite small trees were transplanted in the same orchards, along with fine six-foot trees, but in every case the former outgrew and outbore the latter in the course of a few years.—Country Gentleman.

ALWAYS water your plants in winter time with luke-warm water, if you would have a profusion of flowers and thrifty-growing plants. The water should be of the same temperature as the room or place in which the plants are kept. There is no theory about it, this is a practical fact.

GET some plum trees to set in your chicken yard. They will afford shade for the fowls and if you will keep the ground soft around them you will be likely to raise plums. Of course there are certain wise ones who will call you an ignorant fool and say that hens on the ground can't catch the curculio in the tree. But you plant the trees all the same.

"CAN you tell me, please," she said to a lady in the chair ahead, "if Springfield is where the trains stop for refreshments?" "No, madame," was the response; "Springfield is where the passengers stop for refreshment."

THE arm of A. L. Davis, of Hartland, Vt., was so badly mangled recently as to necessitate amputation. The injured member was buried, but those who attended to this duty neglected to wash and clean it. An exchange says Davis soon after complained of a bad feeling in the hand. He said it felt as though full of sawdust, and insisted on having it taken up and washed. While sitting in a room with his wife, neither of them knowing that the exhumation had taken place, he suddenly exclaimed, "They are pouring warm water on my hand." This was thought to be imagination, but on going to a back room it was found that some men had dug up the hand, which was undergoing the very operation described by the owner.

IN a recent lecture on the germs of disease, Dr. Sternberg said that the strips of flannel saturated with carbolic acid hung up in the sick room, and the chlorine saucer placed under the bed, are wholly valueless in arresting the progress of pestilence. Such methods do harm, he thinks, by leading people to neglect the far more important measure of admitting an abundance of fresh air, which sweeps away the germs. Many antiseptics and deodorizers are valueless for the destruction of germs. For this purpose he recommends the liquor of the chlorine of soda.

The magnetism of the wearer is also supposed to affect the time-registering machinery of watches.

THE story is related of a Philadelphian who sought the services of a physician for what he supposed was a hopeless case of heart disease. The patient felt greatly relieved on learning that the creaking sound which he had heard at every deep breath was caused by a little pulley on his patent suspenders.

AGENTS for Chicago divorce lawyers canvass from house to house, when wives are at home and husbands are away, and explain how readily, secretly and for insignificant reasons divorces may be obtained. Discontented wives, either with or without good cause for divorce, thus have the means brought to them, with the special inducement of an offer to take pay on the installment plan.

THE oldest existing business corporation in the world is said to be that of the "Merchant adventurers of the town and county of Newcastle-on-Tyne," which dates its beginning to a charter of King John, granted in 1216.

HAMBURG STEAKS are the nearest thing to raw beef to be cooked at all, and yet they are very good. For all persons who are recommended to relieve lung troubles, etc., by the hot water and beef diet, the Hamburg steak comes most acceptably. Even tough beef is good cooked in this style. Take a piece of good beef—of course the better the beef, the better your Hamburg will be—and chop it up very fine, first taking out whatever there may be of skin, fat or sinews. Season the meat with salt and cayenne to taste, and then mince very finely a small onion together with a little garlic. Mix these well through and then form it into meat cakes about an inch in thickness.

CROCODILE farming is rapidly becoming a leading industry in certain localities. The largest animals are killed and skinned, their flesh being used to feed their descendants. One dealer last year supplied a St. Louis tanner with 5,000 skins.

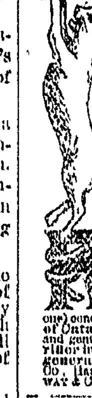

IN a Brooklyn museum the other night a white mouse ran up an elephant's trunk to escape from a dog. The elephant became furious, and, venting his rage on the dog, raised him high in the air and hurled him to the floor dead. Then the little mouse jumped from its hiding place and the elephant was peaceful.

WHEN pursued by a swift dog, the common gray rabbit jumps about nine feet clear on level ground. In proportion to length, a horse, to jump as far as a rabbit, would have to clear 64 feet at a jump. There is no quadruped that has such powerful muscles in his quarters as the rabbit, and none excel him in the muscles of his loin and back.

SPEAKING of the maliciousness of the mocking-bird, a writer states that if young birds are placed in cages where the parent birds can have access to them, they will feed their offspring regularly for two or three days, and then as if in despair, will poison them, giving them the berry of the black ash.

THE Shippensburg News says there is a law in that county which requires merchants and others receiving imported queensware to burn the straw in which it is packed, in order to prevent the spread of the Canada thistle and other noxious weeds.

Gentlemen

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Has been used in my household for three reasons:—

1st. To prevent falling out of the hair.
2d. To prevent too rapid change of color.
3d. As a dressing.

It has given entire satisfaction in every instance. Yours respectfully,

WM. CAREY CRANE."

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is entirely free from uncleanly, dangerous, or injurious substances. It prevents the hair from turning gray, restores gray hair to its original color, prevents baldness, preserves the hair and promotes its growth, cures dandruff and all diseases of the hair and scalp, and is, at the same time, a very superior and desirable dressing.

Rooms carpeted and furnished with wardrobe, bureau, table, washstand, toilet set, two single beds with springs, good mattresses, pillows, and an ample supply of bedding, all in complete order, etc. Buildings carpeted throughout, and thoroughly heated by steam. Rooms for two boys. No large dormitories. Rooms lighted with gas. Media Academy sets a generous table. The students are not poorly fed under the economical plea that plain food and meagre diet are best for students. Dining room fitted out in the best manner. Experienced men waiters. First class steam laundry. Day and night watchman. A gymnasium, with two bowling-alleys and other fixtures. Ample grounds for base ball, foot ball and other athletic sports. Drainage and water supply perfect. No malaria. The health record of Media has few parallels. Media Academy has all the conveniences and appliances necessary to make it a real home and a first-class academy. A school for the training of gentlemen. No hazing or other rowdyism. No "toughing it." Students at this academy must not sacrifice the home influence for an education devoid of good morals, good manners and genteel surroundings. The school is adapted in every way to the education of young men and boys only. Media Academy is not a mixed-school, but strictly a boarding school for the male sex. Media has seven churches, and a Temperance charter which prohibits the sale of intoxicating drinks. Media is conveniently accessible from all points. Nineteen trains leave Broad Street station, Philadelphia, for Media. Return trains every hour; distance thirteen miles. Ask at Media for Academy coach, which meets every train. Drive to the school only five minutes. For new illustrated circular of Media Academy address the Principal and Proprietor, SWITHIN C. SHORTLIDGE, A. B. and A. M., (Graduate of Phillips' Exeter Academy and Harvard College), Media, Penna. Sept. 24, 1884. 1y
